1. In October 1949 regular formation flights with four-engine aircraft with single rudder assemblies were made almost daily over Kryukovo 55°59'N/37°13'E, Moscow Oblast. The aircraft were escorted by jet fighters and flew at an altitude of about 500 meters. One four-engine plane, escorted by two jet fighters with swept-back wings, flew ahead of the formation. Then followed ten four-engine planes, five abreast. The flights were probably made on the occasion of the Day of the October Revolution.
2. Jet planes with swept-forward wings were not seen.
